Power of Anions

Ions are all around us. Ions are electrically charged atoms, carrying either a positive or negative charge. Negative ions (Anions) are critical to sustain life. They have strong absorption capability to absorb micro particles in the air to remove dust and bacteria. Anions in the air are as important as vitamins in food and are also known as 'vitamin of the air', 'longevity element', 'air scavenger' etc. When humans lack access to negative ions, body chemistry suffers - leading to bouts of depression, fatigue and anxiety.
